6 Customers may get shoes back today if they

A collect them before ten.

B bring them early enough.

C wait in the shop all morning.

Part 2 - Questions 7-13

For each question, choose the correct person (A, B or C).

Finding something to read

A Victor

I read on a small electronic screen. It is useful when we travel because I can carry many stories without a heavy bag. I like changing the size of the words. I still buy paper books as presents, but rarely buy them for myself.

B Alice

I borrow books from the school library. Our librarian remembers what I like and often suggests something different. I used to read only adventure stories, but her advice helped me enjoy books about real people. I usually finish a book during the weekend.

C Ben

I swap books with a friend who lives in another town. We post a book to each other every month and discuss it online. We do not always agree, which makes our conversations interesting. I write my thoughts on a card before sending each book.

7 Who talks about books using the internet? A / B / C

8 Who finds their reading method useful on journeys? A / B / C

9 Who gets ideas about books from a school worker? A / B / C

10 Who has started enjoying a different kind of writing? A / B / C

11 Who sends reading material through the post? A / B / C

12 Who records an opinion before lending a book? A / B / C

13 Who can make the words on the screen look bigger? A / B / C

Part 3 - Questions 14-18

Read the article, then answer the five questions on the next page.

The map on the wall

A teacher asked Simon's class to make a map of useful places near their school. The class could have copied an online map, but their teacher wanted them to find information that would help new pupils. Simon joined a group visiting shops and services.

They wrote down opening times and checked whether there was somewhere to leave a bicycle. At a library, they discovered a quiet homework room that none of them knew about. A staff member explained that pupils could use it without booking.

When the groups put their information together, they found two different closing times for the sports centre. Instead of choosing one, Simon phoned the centre. The times were for different days, so both were correct. The group made this clear on the map.

The finished map went on a wall near the school entrance. A new pupil said it helped her find a safe place to wait for her bus. Simon was pleased that the project had a real use. He also understood why checking a small detail could be worth the extra time.

Part 3 - Questions 14-18

For each question, choose the correct answer (A, B or C). You may look back at the article.

The map on the wall

14 What was special about the class map?
