Useful cooking experiences

A Daisy

My aunt taught me to cook soup. We use vegetables from her garden, so the ingredients change with the season. I make enough for two meals and freeze half. Cooking together is a chance to hear her family stories, which I enjoy as much as eating.

B Evan

I learnt simple meals at school. We had to share jobs, and I discovered that washing up is quicker if everyone helps. I now cook on Fridays for my younger brothers. They choose the meal, but I decide how to make it healthier.

C Faye

I use short online lessons. I pause them when I need more time, which would be difficult in a busy class. My first bread was very hard, but I tried again. Keeping a notebook of changes helped me improve the recipe.

Part 3 - Questions 14-18

Read the article, then answer the five questions on the next page.

Learning to wait

Chloe joined a nature club because she wanted to photograph wild birds. On the first walk, she kept moving to get nearer them. Each time, the birds flew away. The club leader suggested choosing one place and waiting quietly.

Chloe found that difficult. She could see other people taking pictures while her camera stayed in its bag. The leader asked her to spend five minutes just watching. She noticed which branches the birds used and where the light fell through the leaves.

A small bird finally landed close enough for a picture. Chloe lifted her camera slowly and took one photograph. It was not perfect: a leaf covered part of the bird. However, she liked it more than the many distant pictures she had taken before.

At the next meeting, the group discussed their photographs. Chloe explained what she had learnt about waiting. She wanted to return to the same spot at a different time of day. Instead of trying to collect as many pictures as possible, she now enjoyed understanding the place and the animals in it.
